Kerrville Genealogical Society explores the early days of this region

The Kerrville Genealogical Society will host Dr. Donald Frazier on Wednesday, Nov. 15, at 2 p.m., at the Guadalupe Basin Natural Resource Center.

Frazier's presentation outlines the interactions between native peoples and the early Spanish settlers in this part of Texas. He is the director of The Texas Center at Schreiner University in Kerrville, and is the award-winning author of several books on Texas and Borderlands history.

Frazier has taught in college classrooms at Texas Christian University, McMurry University, and Schreiner University and has worked extensively in public history. He is a member of the Philosophical Society of Texas, the Texas State Historical Association, The Texas Historical Foundation, and is an advisor to The Alamo, the Texas Education Agency, and the State Board of Education. Recently, Governor Gregg Abbott appointed him to head the Texas 1836 Project. The GBNR is at 125 Lehmann Drive, Kerrville. The presentation is free.
